Neuroscience of Leadership

We are pleased to announce that Tom Flatau will be returning to the Channel Islands in May to offer an insight into the Neuroscience of Leadership.

The latest neuroscience and positive psychology research shows that success and outstanding performance are within everyone's grasp because talent and leadership ability can actually grow!

Learn how to transform your mindset and harness the power so often seen in successful people. The solution lies in your power to rewire your brain - you can literally change your brain structure to extinguish stress and light up your higher brain functions such as decision-making, creativity and interpersonal abilities. This seminar will challenge you to unlock barriers and bring success, happiness and fulfilment throughout your workplace.

Learn how to get twice the productivity out of your staff .

This interactive mini workshop will be well attended so you are advised to book your space early! This event will be open to all industries with ample opportunities to network.
